HANGED,

And America Avenges an Assassination.

Charles Jules Guiteau

Plays His Last Part in the National Tragedy,

And Closes His Career With the Hangman's Halter About His Neck---His Last Hours.

WASHINGTON, June 30th.—12:45 p. m.—The trap has just been sprung, and Guiteau is gasping his last. The procession formed in the corridor at Guiteau's cell, and marched solemnly to the scaffold, the condemned man being accompanied by his spiritual adviser, Dr. Hicks.

Warden Crocker signaled to a man concealed behind the scaffold, the trap was sprung, and Guiteau dropped like a flash, with a heavy thud. There is intense excitement in the streets, but no disorder.

WASHINGTON, June 30—1:20 p. m.—At 1:17 the coffin was brought out and placed beside the body, and Marshal Henry, the warden doctors and others still stand about the hanging body. At 1:19 it was cut down and placed in the coffin.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—1 p. m.—Shortly before 12 o'clock Guiteau seemed to break down completely and burst into tears and sobbed hysterically. Dr. Hicks sat by his side fanning him and vainly trying to calm him.

About halfpast 11 preparations were begun to be made for his execution.

At 11:50 a detachment of artillery was formed on the east side of the rotunda, and brought their muskets to a parade rest. At that time about two hundred and fifty people were in the rotunda. Dr. Hicks was with the prisoner, engaged in prayer.

Guiteau showed great nervousness and appeared greatly startled when he heard the rattle of muskets on the stone floor of the rotunda.

From that moment Guiteau appeared to be thoroughly overcome with emotion. He wept freely, and gave way to great anguish.

The scene in the rotunda while waiting for the prisoner was one long to be remembered. The soldiers were drawn up on one side, a long line of spectators facing them on the other.

It was understood that Guiteau was very much depressed, and it was expected his passage to the gallows would present a very distressing sight. The movement of officers about the jail door was watched with eager attention.

After the death warrant was read by the warden the prisoner became more composed, and turning away, began to brush his hair.

At 12:25 a loud steam whistle was blown at the work house which is near the jail. This whistle usually blows at 12 o'clock, and by it Guiteau was in the habit of gauging time.

The delay to-day was by special arrangement, so that its startling summons might not come before the officers were ready. Two minutes later the iron gates at the corridor clicked. Then warden Crocker made his appearance, and a moment later the familiar figure was seen.

His face was pallid and the muscles about his mouth moved nervously. Other than this there was no signs of faltering. The procession moved quickly to the scaffold, and Guiteau ascended the somewhat steep steps with as much steadiness as could be expected from a man.

HIS PRAYER.

Guiteau's prayer was as follows:

"Father, now I go to Thee and the Savior, I have finished the work Thou gavest me to do. I am only too happy to go to Thee. The world does not yet appreciate my mission, but Thou knowest it. Thou knowest Thou didst inspire Garfield's removal, and only good has come from it. This is the best evidence that the inspiration came from Thee, and I have set it forth in my book that all men may read and know that Thou, Father, didst inspire the act for which I am now murdered. Father, I tremble for the fate of my murderers, for this Government and this Nation by this act will incur eternal enmity, as did the Jews, they killing Thy man, my Savior. The retribution in that case came quick and sharp. I know Thy divine law of retribution will strike this Nation, and my murderers in the same way. The diabolical spirit of this Nation, its Government, and its newspapers towards me will justify Thee in cursing them, and I know that by divine law Thy divine law of retribution is inexorable; I therefore predict that the Nation will go down in blood, and that my murderers from the Executive to the hangman will go to hell. Thy laws are inexorable. Oh, thou Supreme Judge, woe unto the men that violate Thy laws. Only weeping and gnashing of teeth awaits them. The American press has a large bill to settle with Thee, righteous Father, for their villainousness in this matter. Nothing but blood be on them and this Nation and its officials. Arthur, the President, is a coward and an ingrate. The ingratitude to the man that made him and saved his party and land from overthrow, has no parallel in history. But Thou, righteous Father, will judge him. Father, Thou knowest, but the world hath not known me. But now I go to Thee and the Savior without the slightest ill will towards a human being. Farewell, ye of the earth."

[Signed.] CHARLES GUITEAU.

Guiteau's will, which is made in the form of a letter, is as follows:

"WASHINGTON, D. C., June 29, 1882.

"To REV. WM. W. HICKS: I, Charles Guiteau, of the City of Washington, in the District of Columbia, now under sentence of death, which is to be carried into effect between the hours of twelve and two o'clock on the 30th day of June, A. D., 1882, in the United States Jail, in the said District, do hereby give and grant you my body after such execution; provided, however, it shall not be used for any mercenary purpose; and I hereby, for good and sufficient consideration, give, deliver and transfer to said Hicks, my book entitled 'The Truth and Removal,' and copyright thereof, to be used by him in writing a truthful history of my life and execution, and I direct that such history be entitled 'The Life and Work of Charles Guiteau,' and I hereby solemnly proclaim and announce to all the world that no person or persons shall ever, in any manner use my body for any mercenary purposes whatsoever; and if any person or persons shall desire to have my remains, they can do it by erecting a monument, whereon shall be inscribed these words, 'Here lies the body of Charles Guiteau, Patriot and Christian. His soul is in glory.'

CHARLES GUITEAU."

"Witnesses: Charles A. Reed, James Woodward."

At 10 o'clock there was a large crowd of newspaper correspondents crowding about the gate leading into Guiteau's corridor, but they could see nothing except the wooden door which screens Guiteau's cell from view.

Now and then a guard appeared at this door and sent some message to the Warden. At such times those at the gate got a view of the table, corridor and chair on which the death watch sat.

After Guiteau had finished copying his "Prayer upon the Scaffold" he began to arrange his dress, putting on a pair of navy blue trousers.

At 10:30 the guard came out of the door and said: "He is ready for Dr. Hicks, now, and wants the flowers to come."

Another guard, who took the message, hurried off and soon returned with Hicks, who went into the cell.

Guiteau was then reported by his guard to be apparently very composed.

Guiteau's message about flowers referred to his expectation that Mrs. Scoville would send some flowers to him, but none had arrived at the jail at the time he asked for them. After a short conference with Warden Crocker, John W. Guiteau went outside the jail to see his sister. He found her in great excitement, bordering on hysteria, but after a short time he succeeded in calming her and dissuading her from any further attempts to gain admission.

She acknowledged the propriety of such a course, but she could not possibly remain in the city during all the wretched hours of the morning. She brought with her the flowers which Guiteau had asked for, and they were taken to the prisoner.

Mrs. Scoville also brought two handsome floral pieces, a cross and anchor, which she will place upon her brother's coffin with her own hands.

While Dr. Hicks was in the prisoner's cell at 11 o'clock, Guiteau made some requests as to the execution, and having made copies of his "last prayer," poem, and other writings, tore up the originals.

He then sent for the jail bootblack and gave him his shoes to be shined. His dinner was brought as the Doctor was leaving, and he ate with much relish. His dinner consisted of a pound of broiled steak, a dish of fried potatoes, four slices of toast and a quart of coffee.

Dr. Hicks, when he came out of the cell, said the prisoner had not the slightest fear. "We have had a pleasant religious talk. He feels now that he is prepared, and he is ready for the last formality. He commits himself to God with the utmost confidence. I think he will show some emotion, because the nervous strain is so great." "Nobody," Dr. Hicks said, "had seen the prisoner at that time, except himself and the jail officers."

At 11 o'clock Dr. A. E. MacDonald, of New York, and Dr. Francis Loring, of this city, expert witnesses at the trial of Guiteau, arrived at the jail.

Dr. MacDonald said as he understood it, the autopsy would be performed by three physicians and agreed upon by the friends of the condemned man. Afterwards the brain would be removed for further examination.

The three physicians selected to perform the autopsy are Dr. Lamb, who made the autopsy of the President, Dr. Sauers and Dr. Hartigan, deputy coroner, of this city. Dr. Loring expects to make a thorough examination of the prisoner's eyes.

THE AUTOPSY.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 30, 1882.—After an examination of the eyes the brain was removed and inspected, Dr. A. B. Loring found the left eye completely suffused with blood, and both eyes were so indistinct that no opinion could be formed of their condition or expression. Then the body was cut open and thorough and complete examination made with a view of determining all the physiological facts that could be of interest in connection with the case.

THE BRAIN WAS FOUND TO BE IN A NORMAL CONDITION.

And weighed forty-nine ounces. The heart weighed a little over nine ounces and was in a healthy condition, as were all the other internal organs. Dr. MacWilliams, the first physician to leave the room where the autopsy was held, said there was nothing, so far as he could see, about the brain that was abnormal. Its weight, according to Dr. MacWilliams, was forty-nine and a half ounces; the general viscera, he said, were in perfect condition.

SOME extra good work was done at the Maysville Elevators on Wednesday. In seven hours 5,780 bushels of coal were raised with only nine shovelers being engaged in the work. The first two hours they averaged 1,000 bushels an hour. For more than six weeks past the sales have averaged 3,300 bushels a day.

THE moonlight fete to raise money to supply the East End Cornet and Reed Band with uniforms will take place at the public school grounds in East Maysville, next Monday and Tuesday evenings. Prof. De La Venie's Orchestra will furnish the music and there will be provided for the dancers a large platform. Refreshments of all kinds may be had on the grounds. Everybody is invited.

Mid-Summer Entertainment.

Messrs. January & Wood, proprietors of the Maysville Cotton Mills, gave to-day a banquet to all the operatives employed on the premises. The tables, which seated one hundred sixty persons were laid in one of buildings in the rear of the mill, under the directions of Mr. F. H. Traxel who prepared the dinner. It was an excellent one, in Mr. Traxel's best style and was heartily enjoyed by all. After the repast, the party repaired to an adjoining room for dancing. The apartment was decorated with evergreens, flowers, etc., and here and there were bird cages, the feathered occupants of which added their notes to the music.

The affair passed off very pleasantly and will be long remembered by those who were present. There are about two hundred persons employed in the mills and nearly all of them were present to-day. The mills have stopped to make some necessary repairs to the machinery, and will not resume work for about two weeks. This entertainment is the work of Mr. J. Q. Jacquith, the superintendent, who is very popular with the operatives, and is sincerely interested in their welfare. The past year's business of the establishment has been good, and the outlook for the future is most encouraging. The work made there rank first in all the leading markets of the country.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain. If its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

From Rev. P. N. GRANGER.

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Jan., 20, 1880.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure' has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ring-bone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found. Respectfully yours,

P. N. GRANGER.

Perseverance Will Tell.

STROUGHTON, MASS., March 16, 1880. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Gents:—In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure,' one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me it will be very great.

Respectfully yours, CHAS. E. PARKER.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach a every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargement, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. Did the Cow Eat a Woman.

New Albany Ledger.

Henry Kraft, the butcher, killed a cow, from the stomach of which he took two pounds six ounces of nails, a knitting needle, a silver five cent piece, half a dozen hairpins, part of the steel work of a woman's corset, the buckle of a pocketbook, and other similar articles. *

A Thoughtful Little Girl.

Brooklyn Eagle.

Last week Oscar Wilde dined at a private residence in New York. When the cloth had been removed the oldest child of the host, a girl aged about eight, was introduced to the notorious aesthete, who was marvelously arrayed for the occasion. After timidly shaking hands with the stranger and scanning him with open-eyed wonder, the little one crept close to her mother's side and whispered: "Mamma, I don't think Marie had better bring baby in; it might be scared."

The Naming of the Kangaroo.

When Captain Cook first discovered Australia he saw some natives on the shore, one of whom held a dead animal in his hand. The Captain sent a boat's crew ashore to purchase the animal, and finding, on receiving it, that it was a beast quite new to him, he sent the boatswain back to ask the natives its name.

"What do you call this're animal?" said the sailor to a naked savage.

The latter shook his head and said "Kangaroo," which means in Australian lingo, "I don't understand."

When the sailor returned to the ship the Captain said, "Well; and what's the name of the animal?"

The sailor replied, "Please, sir, the black party says it's a kangaroo." The beast has kept that name ever since.

A Living Doll Baby.

Roundout Courier.

Sunday night a little girl was met on one of the streets in a city by a woman who had in her arms a bundle, and who stopped the child, at the same time placing the bundle in the little one's arms; and, after telling her it was a doll baby and to run right home with it, disappeared from view. The child made all possible haste home to show her parents the nice gift of the kind-hearted woman; and on opening the door her mother caught sight of the bundle in her daughter's arms, and at once asked her what it was; she replied that it was a nice dolly, given to her a few minutes before by a lady she met on the street. On taking off the wraps that were around it, it was discovered to be a "nice dolly," but it was alive, which fact was wfully attested by the baby setting up such a cry that took a good deal of coaxing and patting to quiet it. The baby is about four days old.
